CJ HULSEY

Name: CJ Hulsey
Age: 18
DOB: February 4, 1995
Hometown: El Paso, TX
Years Racing: 9 Years

A favorite son of El Paso, CJ Hulsey recently graduated high school and has his sights set on a full time racing career. With the mindset of "to be the best, you have to beat the best", CJ has traveled the country extensively over the past decade in his quest to be the best.

Over the years, CJ has been impressive on and of the track. His on-track prowess has netted him several championships, including a track championship in his first year in karting and Rookie of the Year honors at his home track in his first year of Legends racing.

CJ advanced into the Pro division of Legends Car Racing in 2012 and returned to Charlotte Motor Speedway to compete in the Summer Shoot-Out Series, testing his mettle against the best of the best. Once again, CJ proved that he indeed belongs among the elite.

With 20 feature wins in 2011, CJ spent 2012 honing his skills and testing Late Model Stocks in anticipation of moving up in 2013. The deal with FatHead Racing brings CJ one step closer to his dream of competing in NASCAR.

CJ thanks all of the supporters of his racing endeavors; especially his parents, grandparents, and sisters, as well as the sponsors that make it all possible!

2013 opens the next chapter for two racing programs, CJ Hulsey and Jamie Yelton's FatHead Racing Driver Development Program. Hulsey is a young talented Texan with championship winning credentials, and FatHead Racing has experienced phenomenal success since cranking up in 2005.

The FatHead program accomplishments include three Rookie of The Year honors in UARA, as well as the most UARA feature wins in a single season. Add in the most pole winning qualifying efforts and the most laps led in a UARA season, and you've got the attention of your competition.

Hickory Speedway's Bobby Isaac and Dwight Huffman Memorial races, along with Martinsville's annual 300 lapper and Caraway Speedway's Mid-Atlantic Shoot-Out rank as Late Model Stock Car racing's most prestigious events. Impressive performances on these stages have placed the FatHead Racing program among the elite in the sport, and has garnered tremendous exposure for their sponsors.

The spotlight will certainly be on this team in 2013 as CJ buckles in for the ride to the next level with FatHead Racing.
